Steve Birtles Partnership is a high-end recruitment company in the City. They were looking for a website with market-leading functionality and a smart design to make the complex back-end feel simple.

Our bespoke content management system allows the client full control over the vacancies, candidate registrations and testimonials. Candidates are also assigned personal user accounts where they can manage and check the status of their applications or use the search function to filter further vacancies of interest. All that's really left for them to do is cross their fingers and hope they get the job.
